Tours offered of “green house” RCC students built

The Home Builders Association of Jackson County will host an open house Aug. 27 at a newly constructed EcoCational House, 984 Win Way, just off Highway 62 north of Eagle Point.

The open house is scheduled from 10 a.m. to noon. Designed and built by Rogue Community College Construction Technology students and Mark Knouff Homes, the house meets Earth Advantage requirements.

“Students learned about green building construction techniques while building this home,” said Ralph Henderson, department head. Proceeds from the sale will benefit RCC Construction Technology scholarships.

Contractor Mark Knouff, who received RCC’s 2009 Outstanding Citizen Award for his service to the college and community, made the project possible, Henderson said.

“Mark Knouff has been involved in numerous projects benefiting RCC students. The most recent was his involvement in helping us build this environmentally friendly house,” Henderson added.

For more information contact Henderson at 245-7907.
