Rogue Community College will offer two one-day classes about the divorce process, including how to cope emotionally, financial considerations, and legal aspects involved in a divorce.

One session will be for women only and another for men. Each will cover the most common situations and concerns particular to that gender, including division of assets, how courts and mediation work, and the tools for successfully working through family issues. The classes will be taught in an interactive format, closing with a question-and-answer session.

“What Women Need to Know About Divorce” is scheduled March 5; “What Men Need to Know about Divorce is set for March 12. Both RCC Community Education classes are from 9 a.m. to noon in the RCC/SOU Higher Education Center, Room 119, 101 S. Bartlett, Medford. Tuition is $35.

Three instructors will cover one of three topic areas. Genie Gilliam will cover finances, Nan Gunderson, counseling, and C. Casey White, the legal issues.

“It’s very easy to start down the road to divorce not knowing what can be in store,” says Gilliam, a financial advisor with Edward Jones. “This class is just an overview but can really help with making the best possible decisions possible around a bad situation,” she continued. “And not everyone considering it decides to get divorced after all. Even if you’re not thinking of divorce yourself, this could be valuable information for someone you know.”

For further information and to register, call 541-245-7616, or visit the special interest class category at www.roguecc.edu/CommunityEd.

###

EDITORS: For details contact Kenton Gould, 541-245-7707 or k Gould@roguecc.edu.

N11-17