Rogue Community College’s FireHouse and Wiseman Galleries will exhibit “The Wormhole Effect III” by Eugene artist Brian Knowles March 30–April 30.

A separate installation will be displayed at both RCC galleries. Visitors are encouraged to see both shows, as each installation will serve as an extension of the other exhibit.

Knowles creates room-sized installations that combine animation, printmaking and drawing. Each piece uses collaged screen prints, wood-block prints, projected stop-motion animations and bright, iconic, graphic imagery to explore cosmology, physics, biology and technology. A grant from the Oregon Arts Commission enabled the artist to complete the project for the RCC Galleries.

Knowles received bachelor degrees in biochemistry and painting from Rice University in Houston and a master’s of fine arts in printmaking from the University of Oregon. His animations and installations have been exhibited throughout the Northwest.

A First Friday Art Night reception will be held April 2 from 6-9 p.m. at FireHouse Gallery.
