

April 3, 2015

Discover Your Opportunities with Individualized Career Training at RCC

MEDFORD, Ore.—The Individualized Career Training Department of Rogue Community College will offer a free information session on April 17, 2015, from 11 a.m. to 12 p.m. in Room G5 on the Riverside Campus in Medford.

Occupational skills training offers a wide variety of career opportunities not found elsewhere at Rogue Community College. The department adds new training options on a regular basis and staff may be able to custom design a training program related to your unique needs and interests.

Occupational skill training is a state approved, one-year certificate program that works with local businesses to make the community a hands-on learning classroom for a variety of career fields. These fields are chosen to extend RCC's offerings while not overlapping with other RCC programs.

To apply to the program, candidates must first attend one of the monthly information sessions. These sessions are open to everyone and last approximately one hour and will help you determine whether occupational skill training is the right educational path for you. Topics include how the program works, typical coursework required, and the occupational skill training application process.

For more information, connect with Individualized Career Training at 541-956-7027 or search for “Individualized Career Training” at www.rogucecc.edu.